The finality of claims 1-2 as set forth in the office action of June 4, 2002 has been withdrawn in view of Portacci, 6,172,901, does not clearly teach that the current flowing through each of the PMOS drive transistors is less than the current flowing each of the NMOS access transistors as recited in claims 1-2.

However, in view of the newly discovered reference of Leung et al., 6,442,060, a new non-final office action has been set forth as below:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

It is not understood what are the same voltages as described in lines 22-24, page 3, lines 32-33, page 5 and lines 1-3, page 6 of the specification. This feature is not seen in any of the drawings of the present invention.

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

No antecedent basis for "the same voltages" (line 21).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

6. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Leung et al., 6,442,060.

Leung et al., 6,442,060, discloses in Fig. 5 a four-transistor memory cell comprising:

NMOS access transistors 501-502;

PMOS drive transistors 503-504;

word line WL;

bit lines BL and BL#;

Art Unit: 2818

wherein: the strength of the NMOS access transistors 501-502 are significantly higher than the strength of the PMOS drive transistors 503-504 (see lines 49-63, column 4). As a result, the current flowing through each of NMOS access transistors is greater than the current flowing through each of the PMOS drive transistors (see lines 19-39, column 2).

regarding claim 2, since the drain of each of the NMOS access transistors 501-502 is connected to the corresponding drain of each of PMOS drive transistors 503-504, therefore, during a read operation, the voltage applied to the word line WL is less than the supply voltage Vcc by a threshold voltage of the PMOS transistor.
